The Government is proposing to withdraw the Code for Sustainable Homes and replace it with upgrades to the Building Regulations and technical standards. This debate will explore how the sustainability of new housing can continue to be promoted after the removal of the Code, and whether upgrades to national standards will be sufficient to meet ambitions for sustainable development.

The CIBSE Homes for the Future Group is pleased to host this timely debate.

An expert panel will share their views on the future of housing standards:

- Simon Brown, Department for Communities and Local Government
- Martin Townsend, Head of Sustainability, BRE
- Richard Hodkinson, Managing Director, Hodkinson Consultancy
- Tom Dollard, Head of Sustainability, PTE Architects

The event will be facilitated by Ashley Bateson, Chair of the CIBSE Homes for the Future Group.

Places are limited. If you would like to attend, please register your interest at the following link, and confirmations will be allocated if places are available www.cibse.org/hfg

Agenda:

5.45pm Pre-debate drinks
6.15pm Welcome and introductions
6.20pm Speaker presentations and debate
7.45pm Close of session, followed by drinks and networking

Venue:

Hoare Lea, Western Transit Shed, 12-13 Stable Street, London, N1C 4AB
(Nearest tube – Kings Cross St Pancras)
Tel: 020 3668 7100 http://www.kingscross.co.uk/office-western-transit-shed
If you have any queries contact HFG@cibse.org