Welcome to your October edition of the CIBSE Australia and New Zealand eNews. This month the committee has been focussed on providing membership benefits to the region. We ran a professional membership webinar (linked below), have member case studies for guidance and are offering discounts on affiliate sign-ups. There has never been a better time to start benefiting from the membership grade that suits you.

Auckland University of Technology Poster Day

This year, over 100 research projects were showcased at Auckland University of Technology’s final-year undergraduate engineering student project exhibition. CIBSE was there to sponsor and judge the winning Building Services Design poster.

Talking Buildings Podcast

We are now well into the fourth industrial revolution with the fifth just around the corner. Our Talking Buildings guest this month is Tim Spies, Global Leader of the Building Mechanical team and Client Director for commercial property within Australia at Aurecon. Tim will share his views on the role we have to play in the future of engineering and lessons we can learn from other industries.

Call for Mechanical or Electrical Engineers

CIBSE ANZ is looking for volunteers to contribute to the development of the Mechanical and Electrical training modules that will be available from 2020 as part of CIBSE ANZ Building Services Engineering Training. This is an opportunity to pass on a foundation of best practice, knowledge and reference for the benefit of the industry, community and environment.

You will be working with a team of skilled engineers who are committed to bridging the knowledge gap between what is provided in universities and required to work in the building services industry.

Contact spestonji@cibse.org.au to get involved.
